ABSTRACT

An Internet voting system is provided with security against malicious software by using a bootable CD ROM to boot voter client machines for use in elections.